BUILD LINCOLN MONUMENT HERE

Monument to Memory of Abraham Lincoln and his Gettysburg Address now being Erected in National Cemetery.

To perpetuate in a substantial way the memory of Abraham Lincoln and his Gettysburg address a monument of granite and bronze is now in course of erection at the south end of the National Cemetery where the attractive little pagoda used to stand. The monument is to cost about $5000, an appropriation for that amount having been passed some years ago by Congress but the commission appointed allowing the money to go unused until this time. W. B. Van Amringe, who has done much other work on the battlefield, has the contract.

Dark Rhode Island granite is being used and a bronze bust of Lincoln will surmount the central pedestal. The monument is to be in the form of an exedra, the only example of which on the local battlefield is the memorial to General Collis in the cemetery. The Lincoln monument will be of that same general style only larger and more massive and elaborate.

There will be heavy pedestals at each end and in the center. On either side of the central pedestal, with the bust of Lincoln, are placed bronze tablets, the one containing Lincoln's address on the occasion of the dedication of the cemetery and the other a portion of his second inaugural. Some fine carving marks the top of some of the stones and, though not large, the monument when completed will be a thing of considerable beauty. It is to be about twenty feet in length and ten feet high at the highest point.

Charles Kappes is busily engaged with the work. The concrete foundation has been finished and the granite has been placed in the cemetery. It will be put into position as rapidly as the work can be finished. The bronze tablets have been affixed to the granite and the bust of Lincoln is expected every day.

During the time consumed in the work the War Department has turned over that section of the cemetery to the Park Commission. When the monument is finished the land will again come under the same control as the balance of the cemetery.

MRS. MARY A. BANGE

Mrs. Mary A. Bange, of Hanover, died Sunday. She was aged seventy eight years and enjoyed the respect and esteem of many of the older citizens.

Mrs. Bange was a daughter of Jacob and Mary Smyser, late of near York, and is survived by her husband, one grandson, George H. Wiest, who lived with his grandparents, and a half sister, Mrs. Simon Diller, of Gettysburg. She was the last of a large family of children—a sister, Mrs. George Dick, having died one week ago.

Funeral Wednesday at the house, Rev. M. J. Roth, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of Hanover, officiating.

REED IS CONFIRMED

William Reed, who was convicted of murdering Sadie Mathanue at Mont Alto, last May, and who has been attended by Rev. W. C. Cremer, D. D., Chambersburg, as his spiritual adviser, for some time, was Friday afternoon last, confirmed as a member of the Reformed church. Rev. Dr. Cremer was assisted in the service by Rev. I. W. Hendricks, D. D., pastor of Zion Reformed church, Chambersburg. The wife of Sheriff Gillan was present during the service.

MORE FREE LECTURES

This evening at eight o'clock Dr. Edwin Heyl Delk, of Philadelphia, will lecture in the Seminary on "The Preacher and Modern Thought." The hour is eight o'clock. On January 15 Rev. L. C. Manges, of Harrisburg, will make an address on "The Minister's True Motive" and on January 25 Miss Elsie Singmaster will talk on "Diction." The public is invited to all these.

THE pupils of the colored school will render a Christmas program, Friday evening at the schoolhouse. Exercises begin at 8 o'clock. Admission 5 cents. Public cordially invited to attend.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

James Fuhrman had a warrant served on him Monday evening by Constable Wilson on a charge of failing to pay a fine and costs imposed upon him in Reading for cruelty to animals. Mr. Fuhrman gave bail and has since effected a settlement with the Reading authorities. Fuhrman, it is said, was found guilty of selling for $4.00 a horse unfit for service. A fine of $10.00 and costs amounting to something over $4.00 was imposed but he left Reading without paying the bill.

BRIDE ON HUNTING TRIP

George Ebrehart and bride, nee Miss Jennie Wingert, of this place, recently spent a day at the home of his brother, Thomas Ebrehart, of Round Hill. During the afternoon Mrs. Ebrehart, accompanied by her husband and several other persons, took a stroll through the neighborhood when the bride, with rifle, succeeded in killing seven rabbits, some at a distance of more than 30 yards.—New Oxford Item.

OF INTEREST TO TEACHERS

THE party who took overpout from George E. Hoffman's exhibit room at Fruit Growers' Hall is known and will be legally dealt with unless the coat is returned to Mr. Hoffman's home in Arendtsville before Thursday.

CHRISTMAS SIGNS VERY NUMEROUS

First Christmas Trees Arrive. Stores Decorated and Busy. Prepare for Entertainments. Mails are Heavily.

Christmas trees made their first appearance in large numbers in Gettysburg today and these, with plenty of other things, indicate the very near approach of Christmas.

The high temperature which, the merchants claim, did much to retard the usual fall and holiday trade seems to be at an end and, with crisp winter weather, a big volume of business is expected during the next few days. The "shop early" doctrine was almost totally disregarded in town this year and as a result, if buying is to be accomplished at all it will now have to be done at the eleventh hour.

The stores of town present a most attractive appearance. In addition to unusually good displays of gifts, many of the business men of town have made special efforts to decorate their stores for the Christmas season. Small trees, holly, vari-colored lights, prettily festooned red and green paper and a number of unique displays mark the different stores of Gettysburg.

Churches and Sunday Schools are finishing their preparations for their Christmas entertainments and the public schools, as well, expect to celebrate the Christmas season with programs of appropriate songs, recitations, dialogues and other customary numbers. The Christmas dawn service in the College Church will be the only union Christmas observance in the town.

The mails have grown decidedly heavier during the past few days and a corresponding increase is noted in the express business. The incoming mail is increasing now as well as the outgoing, the latter usually picking up some days before the increase really starts. The carriers, both town and rural, are preparing to handle a big amount of matter and can be expected with extra facilities before the end of the week.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW AS TOLD TO Hugh S. Fullerton

By "REGGIE" (EMIL) RICHTER,
Pitcher of Chicago Cubs, Recently Secured From Louisville, and Who is Regarded as One of the Most Promising Youngsters.

The greatest play I ever saw, or ever hope to see, was made when I was playing semi-pro ball around Chicago before I could break into the professional ranks. I was not in the game, but saw the play from the stands during a hard fight between the Logan Squares and the Gunthers,
at that time the two strongest and fastest ball teams around Chicago.
Both teams were loaded up with major league talent, and they were hustling hard for the championship. The play happened on the Logan Square grounds.

Jimmy Callahan was pitching one of the best games I ever saw and was trying very hard to beat the Gunthers,
his natural rivals. It was in the tenth inning, and Logan Square had scored
one run in the first half of the inning.
Callahan, I believe, hitting home the run. The Gunthers came back at them and got a man to second and one to third, with two men out and a base hit needed to tie the score; and Dickey, who was at bat, was a dangerous man and a hard hitter in a pinch. A hit meant a victory for the Gunthers and a lot depended upon it.
Matty Fitzpatrick was umpiring, and as he was working all alone, naturally was standing back of Callahan. In Emil Richter.

some way one of the balls not in play
fell out of his pocket and rolled back
a foot or two behind him, remaining on the ground, and no one seemed to notice it, although it was near the slab, a little to Callahan's left.

Dickey got hold of one of Cal's fast
balls and tore it through the box a mile a minute, so fast Cal couldn't recover from the pitch in time to try to block the ball. There the funny part of the play started. The ball Dickey hit struck the ball that Fitzpatrick had allowed to fall from his pocket almost squarely, and as the balls struck together one went hard and fast to Bobby Lynch, who was playing shortstop, and the other went even faster to Jack Campion, who was playing second base. No one, not even the umpire, knew which was the ball
that was in play.

Neither Campion nor Lynch noticed that the other was after a ball, and they scooped the two balls almost at the same instant, came up clean with them and let them go toward first base at the same second.

Frank McNichols, who was playing first base for Logan Square, saw the two balls coming toward him at once,
while Dickey was sprinting down the line as hard as he could. One ball was thrown high to McNichols' left,
the other waist high to his right. Two runners were sprinting for the plate.
McNichols never flinched. He kept both feet on first base, reached up with his mitt and grabbed the high throw, reached down with his bare hand and caught the low one—and both balls beat Dickey to the base a step, ended the game and gave Logan
Square the victory.

English Art Treasure.

Another art treasure, a painting depicting a striking incident in the life
of Queen Elizabeth, from the brush
of Solomon J. Solomon, has been added to the collection of the Palace of Westminster. The artist has not had recourse to fresco work, which is unsuited to the climate. The picture is the gift of the late Lord Swaythling,
and occupies a large panel on one of the landings of the staircase leading from the central hall to the committee-room corridor of the House of Commons. It is entitled, "The Commons Petitioning Queen Elizabeth to Marry." The monarch is seated on her throne, and, holding a ring high in the air, is exclaiming, "With this ring
I was wedded to the realm."

SCIENTIFIC PUGS LAST LONGER

Boxers Who Depend Upon
Strength Go Down Quickly.

BAT NELSON IS AN EXCEPTION

Former Champion Has Stood the Gaff
Remarkably Well—Abe Attell in Game Many Years—McFarland and Coulton Unmarked.

Abe Attell, champion still after nearly fourteen years in the ring.
Packy McFarland, well and happy,
the best in the world at his weight and not a mark to show for seven years at a scrapper.

Matt Wells, seven years in the game,
perfectly rational and the English
lightweight champion.

Johnny Coulton, clear complexion, like that of a society belle, and bantam
champion, after six years of mitting.
And again:

Unk Russell, not as clear of brain as he used to be.

Kid Broad, a trifle unsettled.

Battling Nelson, from all accounts
punch groggy.

Abe (Kid) Goodman, not as wise as of yore; Boer Unholz the same.

The above are a few illustrations of the supremacy of science as pitted against bulldog strength and toughness
on the battleground of boards known as the "roped arena." On one hand
we have four men, champions in their respective classes, who have won their crowns through a preference to box instead of fight, to use their heads instead of their brawn. Secondly, shift a glance over the list of men who took a punch to give one, who depended on their physical power more than they did upon cleverness. Note the effect of the two courses to pugilistic fame.

A moral in this story is not hard to find—the safest way is the best in fight-
dom and generally the shortest route to the heights. Moreover, the stay at this choice spot is of longer duration.

One often hears the expression, "He's a rough, tough fellow." There are plenty of rough, tough fellows, but they usually come to the end of their tether long before they should. Toughness is all right and undeniably counts

while in the full bloom of its stability,
but unless there is something else to endure the hardships or to make them
lighter the jaw becomes quite rare and tender.

Abe Attell is a tough fellow, but he utilizes the asset but seldom, for the reason that he has developed scientifically to such an extent that he is rarely forced to fall back on it. Packy McFarland is a sharp contrast. Now, very few would say that Patrick had a firm jaw or could weather a vicious punch. The Chicagoan is fortunate enough as to not need a strong jaw,
however, for it is not often that he gets banged hard enough to rock his eyeballs. Packey knows how to protect himself. So do Matt Wells and Johnny Coulton.

These glove pushers, therefore, go
on year after year meeting the best
and are good for an extensive period
of ring activity. Unless you had seen McFarland's picture and were acquainted with him you never would imagine he was a pugilist. His skin is pink and unblemished. His ears are like an ordinary man's who has never seen a fight, and his nose has never been operated upon.

The rest of the good ones have not been as lucky, although they are marked but little. Coulton has a gash
under his eye, Wells has a puffed ear,
and Attell has a smashed nose. Abe didn't get it in the ring, however. A thrown brick did it.

Battling Nelson was a fighter. Little science had he. It was strength and stamina that he depended on.
They served him for many years because Bat was an exception to the general run of tough ones. But take a look at the Dane today. His face
has been all battered up, his nose has been broken, and his ears have swollen
so abnormally that his hearing is so impaired he can't distinguish the sound of the gong any more.

Unk Russell is said to be demented
from the punchings he has received.
There are a great many others we might mention. Repeated abuse has driven many a fighter crazy. At most, unless he is a Battling Nelson, the career of a "rough, tough fellow" is not a Marathon one. It is the man with the cleverness that wins out in pugilism, and toughness alone is not worth three burrs.

If the family cow has been making

NEW TOOTHBRUSH EACH DAY

Good and Logical Reasons Advanced
for What at First Seems Like Extravagance.

It may seem somewhat extravagant to buy toothbrushes by the dozen or
the gross, use one brush for one day only and then
throw it away,
but that is exactly what
some medical scientists are
now advocating. They believe it will prove economical, too. They have figured it out that 365 toothbrushes a year at ten cents a brush represents an outlay of $36.50. Many persons spend much more than that every year for dental work, and it is now argued that a new toothbrush every day will prevent damage being done

to the teeth, gums and mouth by germs which, once lodged in the bristles of a well-used tooth-brush, are difficult to get rid of even with the aid of powerful solutions.

All of this and much more was explained during the recent annual meeting of the British Medical association held at Birmingham. Dr. D. W. Car-malt and Prof. Herbert Small devoted their addresses chiefly to the advantages to be derived from an increased allowance of tooth brushes and a corresponding reduction in dental bills.

With the aid of diagrams, enlargements of photographs taken under the microscope and specimens of disease
germs taken from tooth brushes, it was shown that the precautions of the average man to clean his toothbrush, after using, are not sufficient.
Instead of paying 75 cents or one dollar for a good brush and using it for several months, it is wiser and cheaper in the end, so Dr. Carmalt declared, to buy cheaper brushes and use a fresh one every day.

If you have neither the spare means nor inclination for this course, however, there are still methods of ridding the much-used tooth brush of the germs which cling to every separate hair. First, boil it for five minutes before and after each use. Secondly,
rinse it in a one per cent. antiseptic
solution and allow it to stand, when
not in use, in a ten per cent. solution of formalin. Both of these drugs can be obtained at any drug store. The ordinary tooth powder and paste are said to be of little value in combating germs. For while they cleanse the teeth themselves, they leave the gums and cavity of the mouth unben-efited.

COST OF CHEOPS PYRAMID

Material and Labor Represents an Estimated Total of More Than $100,000,000.

One of the most familiar questions
asked by "personally conducted" tourists visiting Egypt and the great pyramid
built by Cheops
is "I wonder
how much it
cost to build it?" A building contractor
with a head
for figures and

building estimates has estimated that the Cheops pyramid could not be duplicated today for less than one hundred million dollars. With modern machinery and the employment of 40, 000 stone cutters, haulers, quarrymen,
masons and laborers a duplicate of the pyramid could be erected in two years.

It has been calculated that the work really required the services of 100,000 men for thirty years. The Cheops pyramid occupies a space of 12½ acres and is 746 feet high and contains 142,315,000 cubic yards of stone and granite. The material alone represents an item of $36,000,000,
while the labor would increase this amount by $72,000,000. To this must be added $3,000,000 for tools, transportation and similar items. The pyramid is built on a solid rock 150 feet deep, and to build a foundation of this character would add to the cost to the extent of making the total of $100,000,000.

BURGLARS AFRAID OF BABIES

Their Crying is Considered a Serious
Drawback to Possibility of Making Successful "Haul."

According to the expert opinion of a New York burglar who was disturbed during a recent professional engagement, chased,

caught and
jailed, the only really satisfactory burglar
alarms are living ones, and the best of all
is a crying
baby. No burglar who knows his business, he declared, will enter a house
or remain in one if he hears a baby
crying, for the simple reason that he knows that some one will be awakened. The only objection to this kind

THE BAR SINISTER

By FRED L. YOUNG

We are apt to prize what we are not used to. I suppose one reason the daughters of our multimillionaires are inclined to marry foreigners with titles is that titles are not an American institution. What gives them their glamour is that they are not American.

When on a visit to England I visited the Earl of Bannerton. We were sitting one evening together drinking port wine and smoking. The walls were covered with portraits of his ancestors.

"We Americans," I said, "envy you your family histories, your blood, your ancestral homes. What a fine thing it is to feel that you have pure blue blood in your veins, especially when there is no taint in it."

The earl smiled. "What would you say," he replied, "if I told you that my grandfather was a highwayman?"

"I should say you were amusing yourself."

"He was."

"A highwayman?"

"Yes. Come, I will show you his portraits and that of his wife, my grandmother."

He led me into a room used exclusively for family likenesses and stopped before two portraits, a young man and a young woman. The man must have been extremely handsome. We sat down, and he told me their story while I was looking at them as they were when the events narrated occurred.

"The young bloods of England in olden times were not as vicious in some respects as they are today. They drank pretty hard, but they were not effeminate. When they were not fighting foreign enemies or engaged in cruel warfare an outlet was required for their surplus vitality. One day Sir Roger Smartleigh was driving on a road with his daughter Clarissa—the girl faced lady you see before you—when his coach was stopped. A horseman appeared at the window and demanded what he called 'alms.' He was masked, of course, but he had the manner of a courtier. Captivated by Clarissa's beauty, he swung his hat in deference to her like the hero of a sixpenny novel of the present day. Sir Roger emptied his pockets, holding out the contents, with his watch, to the highwayman.

"Never mind those," said the robber. "If the young lady will give me that bit of lace she wears about her throat I will ask no more."

"Glad to escape with so little damage," Sir Roger bade his daughter give up her lace. She obeyed like a dutiful child, handing it to the highwayman.

"I only ask it as a loan," he said, and will bring it to you in person."

"If you do," said Sir Roger, "you will be taken and hanged to the highest gibbet in England."

"That prospect will only enhance the zest of the visit," replied the man. "Besides, to see this beautiful girl once more I would be willing to dangle from a rope's end."

"The coach was driven on and the highwayman left behind."

"Several months after that Sir Roger and Lady Smartleigh gave a masked ball. The dancing was at its height when Clarissa observed a figure dressed as a Spanish toreador which seemed to her the acme of manly form. Determined to discover if possible who he was, as soon as the dance was finished she resolved to join him. When he parted from his partner he made her a bow, sweeping the floor with his hat, and she knew there was but one man in England who could make so grand a salute.

"She stood undecided, her heart beating like a kettle-drum, for she knew the highwayman had come on his promised visit, and she remembered her father's threat. At the moment the highwayman turned and, seeing her, came toward her, thrusting into her hand a bit of lace. His own hand touched hers, and he felt hers tremble.

"That touch, that quiver, precipitated a love affair. The man knew she was trembling for him, and she was infatuated by the frightful risk he ran to visit her. He drew her hand through his arm and led her out on to the dimly lighted terrace.

"There was the usual melting of the woman under the warm sun of love. At first she demanded in an assumed tone of severity what right he had there, and when the rascal told her that he had come to see her and die she threw her arms about him and begged him to flee for his life. How he could flee when she wouldn't let him go I don't know. Sir Roger had got a glimpse of the fellow when he was making his courtly bow and, having seen it before, knew his guest. He made his way through a crowd of dancers as fast as he could, but before he reached his man the latter had disappeared, for Clarissa, hearing her father roaring and swearing and crying 'Where is the villain?' opened her arms, and the robber was in the garden and over the fence like the boy of twenty-two he was.

"Clandestine meetings between the lovers followed the ball, and a secret marriage followed the meetings. The highwayman—the handsome chap was the second son of my great-grandfather—did not live with his wife for two years after their marriage, for if he had showed himself he would have got the rope. But after his elder brother died childless and he inherited the title he got a pardon and acknowledged his wife, and I am one of their descendants."

WINTER CARE OF SHEEP.

Suggestions For Feeding and Care of Breeding Ewes.

Breeding ewes may be kept in first class condition through the winter by the use of roughages and concentrates such as may be grown on the average farm, says the Orange Judd Farmer. The mistake is often made of thinking that the ewes can be wintered on some roughage, as hay or straw, and still keep in proper condition. They should not be fat, but should carry more flesh than is usually supposed.

Clover hay is an excellent roughage, as is also alfalfa. Corn fodder, oat straw, barley straw or roots, such as mangels, may be used. Corn silage has proved satisfactory and economical when fed with hay or fodder. It furnishes a succulent feed that acts as a stimulant to the appetite and as a regulator of the bowels. Ewes that are fed a daily allowance of silage will more certainly keep in a thrifty condition. Roughage alone will not be sufficient, as some concentrate or concentrates should be fed. With a liberal supply of roughages not more than half a pound of concentrates, such as oats, should be required. Less than this amount will often be sufficient. Bran or cowpeas may be fed

The fine Lincoln ram herewith shown proved a prize winner at the fair. It is owned by Ormond & Sons of Wisconsin. Lincoln sheep are generally recognized as the largest and heaviest of the domesticated breeds. The mature rams weigh 225 to 300 pounds and ewes 225 to 250. They flourish best where pastures are level rather than hilly, where grass is abundant and where the climate is not subject to great extremes. They mature early, considering their great size; dress well and are especially valuable in crossing where increased size and weight of fleece are desired.

with good results. Corn may be fed but since it is quite fattening the amount should be very small. Cans should be taken that too much of the protein-rich feeds, such as clover, alfalfa or bran, is not fed. They tend to produce lambs that are too large a birth or that have more bone development than is desired.

In addition to receiving a proper ration dry quarters are necessary if the ewes are to go through the winter as they should. Too warm quarters may be possible. Ordinarily one thickness of well matched inch boards is all that is needed on a sheep barn. The cracks should be battened, however, as drafts are very undesirable. Proper ventilation and sunlight should be kept in mind. The sheep should have the run of a dry yard that is sheltered from winds and storms, as exercise is required if they are to keep in good condition. As to space required, from ten to fifteen square feet will be ample for each ewe. From one and one half to two feet of running space should be allowed at the feed rack.

Handling Young Horses. Instead of being angry with the young horses because they manifest fear of some things, remember how wonderful it is that horses accommodate themselves to most of man's artificial environs without any question. A few soothing words and pats, leading the youngster past fearsome objects, will soon make him bold as a lion and additionally valuable. Never strike him when he is distracted with fear.

Silo Eliminates Waste. The filling of the silo and thus providing a supply of palatable and succulent feed for the stock for the entire year is not only a sign of progress, but is an indication that the farmer so doing is producing milk or beef more easily and economically than his neighbors who have no silo. It is also a sign that the most is being made of the corn crop. Waste is largely eliminated.

Ask Your Doctor

You could not please us better than to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis. Thousands of families always keep it in the house. The approval of their physician and the experience of many years have given them great confidence in this cough medicine.

J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Quite often the care given valuable horses is indicated by getting them new harnesses after they have run away because of the bad repair of the old and by getting them shot after they have slipped and received injuries on icy roads.

WHY CHANCE IS SO SUCCESSFUL

Chicago Cubs' Leader Gets Rid of Trouble Makers.

KNOWS HOW TO HANDLE MEN

Gets Best Possible Results Out of Players Who Looked Like Inferior Baseball Timber When He Secured Them—Several Instances Cited.

One of the mottoes of Frank Chance, the great leader of the Chicago Nationals, is this: "Don't give any room to trouble makers. Malcontents make trouble for managers and owners and ruin a baseball team." Chance has had some experience with that breed and knows what he is talking about. His great success as a leader was achieved very largely through his ability to handle all kinds of men and to get the best possible results out of what looked like inferior timber when he secured it.

Pitcher Jeff Overall was a perfect failure in Cincinnati, but pitched remarkable ball for Chicago for several years, having the best that was in him brought out by the clever handling of Chance. Jimmy Archer, discarded by Jennings at Detroit, became and is today one of the grandest backstops in the business, under the tutelage of Chance. The Cub leader took Steinfeldt after Harry was all through in Cincinnati and with him polished off his crack infield and made it a championship combination.

Chance relieved Brooklyn of Jimmy Sheppard, made him captain of his team and his strongest assistant. All these men had been cast aside by other clubs, who considered them of poor quality, and all developed into stars under the superb management of Frank Chance.

It is evident that Chance has the faculty of getting good work out of all kinds of players, and it is therefore with exceptional value that his advice about disturbers must be taken. It is excellent dope. There is no worse handicap to a ball club than one or more players who belong to the kicking school. These are fellows who are never satisfied with their treatment, imagine they are always getting the worst of it and do not hesitate to mouth and rave about everything that they don't like.

A ball club to be successful must be one big happy family, minus grouches and kickers. The professional trouble maker has no business on a winning team. In fact, he is never on a winning team, because his personality keeps his club from winning. He gets other players sore and usually can secure one or two pals to help him do his kicking.

The best and only thing to do with this kind of an athlete is to get rid of him as soon as possible. A great illustration of this policy is furnished by the Philadelphia Athletics, who are a fine bunch of fellows both on and off the field, all eager to win and to help the team along.

There are no kickers or grouches on the world's championship team, no cliques or factions, just one big crowd of hearty athletes, trying their best to win game after game and helping each other in every way they can. Connie Mack would as soon stand for an armless player as for a grouchy or chronic kicker. That's one of the reasons for his continued success.

QUEER HOME RUN HIT.

Randall's Four Baser Knocks Beer Bottle From Fan's Mouth.

"Talking about peculiar plays," says Amos Strunk, "I saw one that had everything I ever read about skinned eight ways from the ace. It was in Milwaukee when I played with the Brewers.

"This happened one Sunday. We were playing Toledo, I think, and Newt Randall, who was with the Cubs and sent to us, was at bat. It was formerly the custom out there to sell beer to the bleachers, and everybody who was Dutch drank his beer and watched the game too.

"Up in the top row of the bleachers, close to the fence, was a stout little Dutchman with the bottle tipped up, and the suds were gurgling down his gullet. A ball was flung to Randall, and he hit it an awful wallop. Believe me or not, that ball sailed into the bleachers, knocked the bottle out of the Dutchman's mouth and hand and carried it over the fence along with itself. It was a home run—the funniest thing I ever saw."

Tunny Fish and Tuna.

Just the fact that a fish important enough to weigh more than a quarter of a ton has two names—tuna and tunny—all for itself, has been the cause of much discussion lately. It has been doubted whether the gamy tuna of California could be the same as the great oily tunny of New England, which since last year has been caught invading the still waters of New Jersey. But that is the truth. The word "tuna" is Spanish and is applied to the more active member of the family that abounds near the Catalina islands. But the coarser tunny, or "horse mackerel," of the Atlantic is only a big boorish brother. The appearance of this fish in New Jersey waters is considered anomalous by the aquarium experts.—New York Post.

MICHIGAN DEER WILL

ROOM GAME PRESERVE

Stocking of the new game preserve in Franklin Co., recently purchased by the state and ordered established by the state game commission will be started immediately if the weather continues favorable. The tract is owned by the state forestry department, but has been loaned to the game commission for the propagation and protection of game.

The tract has been surrounded by signs and notices warning hunters that the preserve is closed at all times have been posted every 100 feet. Sheds and barns for the storage of feed and to shelter the wardens are to be built and within a few months a number of Michigan deer will be liberated in the tract. In all respects the property will remain wild so that the animals and birds may be attracted to it.

The idea of the preserve is that it will give a safe place for all game and that the surrounding districts will be stocked for the hunting season.

Frederick von Boozlich (in Munich)—Ah, mein friends, won't you come in and haf some beer?

Frederick von Boozlich—In vat proportion do you take it?

Mr. Parvenue—I drink the wine and my wife drinks the water.

MAY CHANGE LOCATION

Thurmont has high hopes that Blue Ridge College, an educational school under the charge of the Church of the Brethren, and now located at Union Bridge, may be moved to that town. Negotiations are now under way and it is understood that they are likely to end in the trustees of the school deciding to locate the college there.

Blue Ridge College is one of the newer institutions of the Church of the Brethren being about 15 years old. It is a co-educational school and at present it has an enrollment of about 200 students. Commercial and classical courses are given, and it is felt that the college is doing a good work.

The reason for desiring a change is the fact that since the Tidewater Portland Cement Plant has been located at Union Bridge, conditions at the college have not been as desirable as formerly.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Rev. Dr. L. L. Sieber has returned from the national convention of the Anti-Saloon League which closed in Washington Friday night after a session of twelve days. About 700 superintendents and workers in the temperance cause from 37 states and the Dominion of Canada were represented in the convention. The convention closed with a determined effort to bring before Congress a bill to prohibit the shipping of liquors into dry territory. At the banquet Thursday night 50 congressmen were represented and a number of them spoke on the interstate law. Ex-Governor Hadley, Indiana, was the chief speaker.

TUAN-FANG KILLED BY HIS SOLDIERS

General is Hacked to Death
Seeking to Escape.

Peking, Dec. 19.—Tuan-Fang, former director general of the Hukwang railroad, and at one time viceroy of the province of Chi-Li, has, according to information received by missionaries at Chung-King, been killed at Tse-Chow, in Shan-Si province, by his own soldiers.

Tuan-Fang previously had dined with his officers, and suspecting their disloyalty, offered them 40,000 taels for a safe passage to Sian-Fu, the capital of Shen-Si province. He then sought to escape in a chair, his brother accompanying him, but the soldiers detected Tuan-Fang and one of them slashed him with a sword.

"Would you kill me?" asked the general. The chorus, "Yes, kneel!" came from the soldiers.

To this Tuan-Fang answered: "I shall not kneel. You may kill me if you choose."

The soldiers then fell upon the general and hacked his body to pieces. His brother also was killed.

Tuan-Fang was one of the most prominent men in China.

CARRY OUT AND LOOT SAFE

Yeggmen Get $200 in Money and Stamps From Delaware Postoffice.

Williamsport, Pa., Dec. 19.—Yeggmen entered the postoffice at Beech Creek, carried the safe from the building and blew it open with nitro-glycerine.

The robbers secured $200 in money and stamps and are believed to be members of a band who have operated in Lycoming, Clinton and Potter counties during the last few months.

The cracksmen carried the safe nearly one hundred yards from the building, across a small creek into a vacant lot. From the tracks there seemed to be four men.

Cummins Released on Bail.

New York, Dec. 19.—William J. Cummins, the promoter, who was convicted of the larceny of $140,000 of the funds of the Carnegie Trust company, left the Tombs, where he had spent a more or less comfortable time, after his bail bond for $60,000 had been accepted by the district attorney. He said that pending his appeal to the higher courts on the certificate of reasonable doubt he would stay in New York, and busy himself paying off the obligations which he assumed while he was chairman of the Carnegie Trust company's executive committee.

Petrified Ham Recalls Big Battle.

Rapid City, S. D., Dec. 19.—With the finding of a perfectly petrified ham, imbedded in the soil of Big Foot trail, near the point where it crosses White river, the battle of Wounded Knee, twenty years ago, is recalled. The ham is in a state of perfect preservation the rind, fat, meat and bone all being distinctly shown.

GIRLS EXPOSE DYNAMITE PLOT

One Heard Bargaining For Wagon to Carry Explosive.

GO BEFORE GRAND JURY

Federal Investigation Touches Upon
Men Who Frequented Ironworkers'
Union Offices in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 19.—The federal grand jury resumed the investigation of the dynamite cases, and among the witnesses were hotelmen from Youngstown, O., at whose hotels men now known to have been engaged in dynamiting were registered.

The immediate vicinity of Youngstown was the scene of some explosions, and the place was in easy access to others where property was destroyed.

Miss Grace Kaylor, stenographer, and Miss Irene Hermann, bookkeeper, both of whom are at present employed at the ironworkers' offices, and had been for some time prior to the arrest of J. J. McNamara, were among those who went before the grand jury.

Prosecutor Baker has made a request of the government attorneys for such evidence against dynamiters as may be used in this county, and says that the government has brought a number of witnesses here whom the state courts could not have compelled to come. Walter Drew, of the Erectors' association, replying to Baker's statement that he is anxious to enter upon prosecutions, said:

"Baker had the reports of the expert as to what was contained in the evidence. If he had wanted to proceed against other men he could have done so. If he could not have brought these men to Indiana because of failure to extradite them, he could at least have made outlaws of them in Indiana, and prevented them from holding their meetings in the city of Indianapolis. He could have proceeded against the nest of criminals which centered here."

From this statement it is believed that Drew has positive evidence that members of certain labor organizations, especially the ironworkers, had guilty knowledge of the dynamiting plots, and that this is being developed by the federal grand jury investigation.

Miss Kaylor was relied upon to tell who had been frequenters at the ironworkers' headquarters just before the arrest of John J., the convicted secretary-treasurer, and Miss Hermann was asked about the records of McNamara's finances.

A woman whose identity, the authorities wished to keep secret who overheard bargaining for a wagon in which McNamara confessed he hauled 100 quarts of nitro-glycerine from Albany, Ind., to Muncie, in August, 1910, was a witness.

Her testimony was believed to be confirmatory of McNamara's statement that he bought the explosive from a concern at Portland, Ind., on the pretext that he was to use it for a quarry near Indianapolis, but that he really used it for blowing up structures at Peoria, Ill.

BEATTIE'S FATHER SEES BABY

Father of Slain Woman Visited by Parent of Slayer.

Dover, Del., Dec. 19.—Henry C. Beattie, Sr., of Richmond, was in this city to arrange for the future of the infant son of the late Henry C. Beattie, Jr., now with its mother's parents. Mr. Beattie's visit was entirely unknown to Dover on Saturday.

The fathers of the two young married people who figured in the year's most sensational murder trial walked the quiet streets of Dover arm in arm.

The Beattie baby will remain here, and be brought up in the Owen home.

CROPS SHOW INCREASE

Acres Decreases, but Value Gains
$190,000,000 Over Last Year.

Washington, Dec. 19.—With decreases in the production of the eleven important farm crops, not including cotton, the total value of these this year reached $3,769,562,000, according to the final estimate announced by the department of agriculture. This is an increase of almost $190,000,000 over their value last year.

The important features of the different crops, compared with last year, were:

Corn—An increase of 1,790,000 in acreage, a decrease of 354,772,000 bushels in production and an increase of $180,411,000 in value.

Winter wheat—An increase of 1,833,000 in acreage, a decrease of 3,486,000 bushels in production and a decrease of $3,167,000 in value.

Spring wheat—An increase of 2,029,000 in acreage, a decrease of 10,297,000 bushels in production and a decrease of $14,821,000 in value.

Oats—An increase of 390,000 in acreage, a decrease of 258,215,000 bushels in production and an increase of $8,257,000 in value.

Barley—A decrease of 116,000 in acreage, a decrease of 13,592,000 bushels in production and an increase of $38,756,000 in value.

Rye—A decrease of 88,000 in acreage, a decrease of 1,778,000 bushels in production and an increase of $2,604,000 in value.

Buckwheat—A decrease of 49,000 bushels in production and an increase of $1,099,000 in value.

Flaxseed—An increase of 290,000 in acreage, an increase of 6,552,000 bushels in production and an increase of $5,800,000 in value.

Potatoes—A decrease of 101,000 in acreage, a decrease of 56,295,000 bushels in production and an increase of $39,212,000 in value.

Hay—A decrease of 2,674,000 in acreage, a decrease of 13,534,000 tons in production and a decrease of $53,198,000 in value.

Tobacco—A decrease of 353,000 in acreage, a decrease of 198,306,000 pounds in production and a decrease of $16,932,000 in value.

ROCKEFELLER LAWYER CALLED DOWN

Cannot Interrupt Witnesses in Steel Probe.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Mr. Stanley, chairman of the house steel investigating committee, sharply reprimanded John D. Rockefeller's counsel, Mr. Murray, for interrupting a witness, J. B. Cotton, of Duluth, former counsel for the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad.

Mr. Stanley, also, in introducing Mr. Cotton, said that "Mr. Rockefeller courteously declined the invitation extended" to appear before the committee, but that Rev. Mr. Gates, Mr. Rockefeller's almoner, "declined and forgot to be courteous."

"Mr. Cotton, whose name was involved," he added, "asked to be heard."

Mr. Cotton branded as a falsehood the testimony of C. H. Martz that he (Cotton) had ordered him to "pad the road's cost as high as $5,000,000, in order to justify rate charges. Mr. Murray later interrupted to explain the testimony.

"I have warned you, Mr. Murray, exclaimed the chairman, "that if you have anything to say to this committee you must submit it in writing. You will conduct yourself according to the rules of this committee. We want nothing else from you. We do not intend to permit you to interpret the testimony of witnesses. If you have anything to say, you must go on the stand and be sworn, so that you may be cross-examined. Sit down."

Mr. Murray sat down.

SENATE MODIFIES BILL ENDING PACT

Committee Decides to Tone Down House Resolution.

TAFT NOTIFIED RUSSIA

The President Acted on His Own Initiative Last Friday. He Tells Senate in a Special Message.

Washington, Dec. 19.—President Taft has served notice of the termination on Jan. 1, 1913, of the Russian treaty of 1832 on the Russian government, but ratification of that action of the executive by the senate was prevented by an objection by Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, who protested against precipitous action.

President Taft notified the senate committee on foreign relations of his action in a letter and the senate proper in a special message.

President Taft served the notice of termination of the treaty on the Russian ambassador, George Bakhmeteff, at the White House, last Friday, Dec. 15. The formal notification was given to the Russian government in St. Petersburg Sunday.

The notification to Ambassador Bakhmeteff, at the White House, was what gave rise to the report that a formal protest had been entered by Russia against the language of the Sulzer resolution.

It is now said that the notification that Russia would be offended at the Sulzer resolution from American Ambassador Curtis Guild, Jr., at St. Petersburg.

Prior to the session of the senate, the senate committee on foreign relations decided to report to the senate a substitute for house resolution for the abrogation of the Russian treaty. This means that the house will be included in the action of abrogation, and that any language offensive to the Russian government will be avoided.

House leaders, including Representative Sulzer, author of the original resolution, said that the house would gladly accept the senate resolution.

The message said in effect that by instruction which the president had caused the secretary of state to transmit to the American ambassador at St. Petersburg Dec. 15, 1911, there was given to the imperial Russian government, under date of Dec. 17, official notification on behalf of this government of intention to terminate the convention of commerce and navigation of Dec. 18, 1832, upon the expiration of the year commencing Jan. 1, 1913.

Immediately after the president's message had been read, Senator Lodge presented the resolution agreed upon by the foreign relations committee, and offered it as a substitute for the Sulzer resolution passed by the house.

Resolution to End Treaty.

The Lodge resolution follows:

"Whereas, The treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and Russia, concluded on the 18th day of December, 1832, provides in article XII thereof that it shall continue in force until the first of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, and, if one year before that day, one of the high contracting parties shall not have announced to the other, by an official notification, its intention to arrest the operation thereof, this treaty shall remain obligatory one year beyond that day, and so on until the expiration of the year which shall commence after the date of a similar notification; and

"Whereas, on the 17th day of December, 1911, the president caused to be delivered to the imperial Russian government by the American ambassador at St. Petersburg an official notification on behalf of the government of the United States announcing intention to terminate the operation of this treaty upon the expiration of the year commencing on the first of January, 1912; and

"Whereas, said treaty is no longer responsive in various respects to the political principles and commercial needs of the two countries; and

"Whereas, the construction placed thereon by the contracting parties differ upon matters of fundamental importance and interest to each; therefore,

"Be it resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled that the notice thus given by the president of the United States to the government of the empire of Russia to terminate said treaty in accordance with the terms of the treaty is hereby adopted and ratified."

Russia Will Not Yield.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—It is apparent that Russia has no intention of yielding any concessions whatsoever on the Jewish passport question, no matter what proposals may be made by the government of the United States. The members of the duma are skeptical as to the possibility of the Democratic party taking any serious action in the matter. The leaders of the duma assert that no member of the cabinet would dare to touch the question.

HOLY GHOSTER GETS TEN YEARS IN JAIL

Rev. Sandford Sentenced For Manslaughter.

Portland, Me., Dec. 19.—Ten years in the federal prison at Atlanta was the sentence imposed upon the Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Society of Shiloh, for causing the deaths of six persons on the yacht Coronet.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Clarence Hale in the United States district court, on the first of six counts of the indictment, which charged manslaughter in causing the death of six of his followers by neglect, in failing to provide the necessities of life on the recently completed seven months' cruise along the shores of three continents.

Sandford received the sentence without emotion. He had previously announced that he would make no appeal and accept the court's decision without protest.

When the district attorney moved that the five counts be continued, a suspicion of a smile spread over his face, but it was visible for only a moment.

Every seat was taken in court and scores stood in the aisle. Interest had been heightened by reports that federal investigators had been at Shiloh in the guise of converts to watch Sandford and report his mental condition. After Sandford reaches Atlanta, if his acts warrant, it is possible he may go to the federal insane hospital at Washington.

RECEIVERS FOR WABASH R. R.

Application Was Filed by Westinghouse Company.

FIX BONDS AT $300,000

Court Appoints F. A. Delano, W. T. Bixby and Edward B. Pryor to Take Charge of the Road.

St. Louis, Dec. 19.—Judge E. B. Adams, of the United States circuit court, appointed F. A. Delano, of Chicago, president of the Wabash railroad; Edward B. Pryor, of St. Louis, vice president of the Wabash, and William K. Bixby, chairman of the board of directors of the American Car and Foundry company, receivers for the Wabash, in answer to a petition filed by the Westinghouse Airbrake company through Schnurmacher & Rassieur, their attorneys.

The claim in the petition is for $18,000. Each of the receivers are required to give bonds in the sum of $300,000 within ten days to qualify.

The fact that the petition was filed after the regular closing hours of the court, and that immediate action was obtained on it made it difficult to obtain exact information regarding the claim.

Benjamin Schurmacher, St. Louis attorney, who filed the petition for the Westinghouse company, refused to give any information whatsoever regarding the matter, and expressed great surprise that anything should be known.

William K. Bixby, of St. Louis, one of the receivers appointed, did not know of his appointment until informed by the press, and consequently was in no position to make a statement. Edward B. Pryor, vice president of the Wabash, and another of the receivers appointed by the court, was in New York, from where he started for St. Louis.

Lawrence Greer, a New York attorney for the firm of Pierce & Greer, whose partner is chairman of the board of directors of the Wabash, was in St. Louis, and at the hearing of the petition representing clients who are interested in the Wabash railroad. He refused to divulge their names.

FIGHTING TAFT IN INDIANA

State Chairman Lee Leading Forces Opposed to President.

Indianapolis, Dec. 19.—The Taft and anti-Taft forces in Indiana, the latter led by State Chairman Lee, who gave out a statement at Washington declaring that the president cannot carry Indiana, have begun upon campaigns of organization for the selection of members of the new state committee in January, and every county in the state is being visited by representatives of the two factions.

The Taft people claim that Lee's object is really to organize the state for Roosevelt, and that he is nothing more than a figurehead for former Senator Beveridge, who attributes his defeat last year to the stand that the president took in his Winona speech on the Payne-Aldrich bill.

BISHOP TALBOT OPERATED ON

Head of Episcopal Diocese Goes Under Knife in New York City.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Rt. Rev. Zebulon Talbot, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of South Bethlehem, Pa., underwent an operation at the late Dr. Bull's sanitarium.

He had been suffering for some time from an internal disorder, and his physician decided an operation was imperative.

Accompanied by Mrs. Talbot, he left his home at South Bethlehem and went directly to the sanitarium.

After reaching New York it was said by the physicians that his condition was not quite as serious as had been thought.

TASTE, SMELL AND HEARING CONE

Destroyed by Catarrh Can Be Quickly Restored by Using Ely's Cream Balm.

The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure can get instant relief by simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm.

Unlike internal mixtures which upset the stomach, or strong snuffs which only aggravate the trouble, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose, head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and hearing. More than this, it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent its becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner.

Mothers should give their children Ely's Cream Balm for cold and croup. It is perfectly harmless, and pleasant to take. People's Drug Store, Special Agent for Gettysburg.

Thereby hangs a tale. One member of the Athenaeum was one day walking downstairs. He trod upon the toe and the corn of another member. He apologized profusely. The sufferer showed upon his face signs of acute physical agony. But at the same time he showed signs of lively moral delight. Wincing as he was, he said to him who had trodden on his corn: "Sir, may I thank you?"

"Thank me? What for?" said the offender.

"It is true you have trodden on my foot," said the sufferer, "but at the same time you are the first man in twenty years who has spoken to me in this club."

FREE REMEDY HELPS CHILDREN MADE BRUIN PEEVISH

Many a mother has learned of a way of avoiding sickness in her family, especially among the children, by the use of a free sample bottle of the famous laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This offer of the doctor's to send a free sample bottle has been responded to by thousands of women
in all parts of America.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a truly wonderful laxative and especially adapted to the needs of babies
and children because it is pleasant to taste and no child will refuse it. Then, it is mild and never gripes. It is all that a child's remedy should be,
though it is a good laxative for the whole family because it is effective at all ages. It is not dynamic like salts, pills and powerful cathartics,
which should not be given to children under any circumstances.

Nine times out of ten when a child
complains and you don't know exactly what is the matter with it, it needs a laxative—its bowels are constipated. Syrup Pepsin will correct the trouble, tone up the child and soon it will be well again—wonderful results have been secured with Syrup Pepsin over night.

You can buy it of any druggist at fifty cents or a dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size, but you are invited to make a test of it first at the doctor's expense. Send him your address today and he will send you a free sample bottle direct to your home. Then when satisfied buy it of your favorite druggist.

For the free sample address him:

AMUSING INCIDENT IN MOUN- TAINS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Bear Has Encounter With Swinging
Beetle Which He Uses as Punching Bag and Comes Off Second Best.

A Pennsylvanian once witnessed a curious incident in the mountains of his state, wherein a black bear was the principal figure.

It appears that the winter before
the wood cutters of the mountains had broken the handle of one of their tools, a beetle. A rope was tied about the beetle head and it had been left hanging to the low limb of a tree. The man who witnessed the spectacle happened to be in the vicinity one summer day, and, remembering the beetle,
started after it to carry it home.

As he came near the place he saw a black bear slowly circling around the hanging beetle at a distance of a few feet. He was too much occupied to notice the man, who stopped to see what bruin was about.

The bear acted as if he thought the beetle were some kind of trap. He would approach within a few feet and sniff. Then he would back off a little way, squat on his haunches and give a low snort, eyeing the tool all the time.

While was thus engaged a sudden breeze sprang up and set the beetle
swinging lightly. The animal snorted again and backed off a step or two.
Soon another gust struck the beetle
and swayed it still more. The bear responded by a louder snort—a sort of challenge.

As soon as the beetle stopped swinging bruin got up and circled about it several times. At length he went near —then nearer. He reached out his paw and touched the thing gently. As it swung toward him he hit it, this time rather forcibly.

The beetle head was a round one of hickory, with heavy iron rings at each end. As it rebounded from the second blow of the creature's paw it hit him fairly on the nose. Angry at this, he rushed at the beetle again and gave it a sounding blow. As it came toward him he dodged a little, just enough to save his nose and receive the blow
in his left eye! He hit it again, and his nose got another blow. That hurt
so much that he growled angrily and rooted viciously in the leaves.

Bruin was furious by this time and went at that beetle as if he meant to annihilate it. He gave it a tremendous blow with his right paw, and the tool
swung clear over the limb, came down on the other side, and struck him on top of the head. He uttered a roar that made the woods ring. Finally he caught the beetle in his paws, pulled upon it until he broke the rope, and then went to cuffing and biting the tool.

When he found that it did not fight back any more bruin let it roll to the ground. Then he shook himself and walked off into the woods.

Further Study of Mars.

Photographing through colored screens is the new method of studying Mars that has been undertaken by Tikhoff at the Pulkova observatory. Four different screens were used—transmitting respectively red, red and orange,
orange and yellow, and green—and in the 30-inch equatorial telescope they produced good photographs of very small size. The red and the green filters gave strikingly different results.
On the plates that were exposed under the red, the continents are much brighter than the south polar cap,
while the seas are very dark and the canals are best seen. The pictures that were taken under the green show
the south polar cap as the brightest object, and the seas are grayish. A study of the polar cap has made it appear greenish instead of white. The interesting conclusion has been reached that at the time the photographs were made the cap was ice instead of snow, and this view has been confirmed by experiments on the absorption spectrum of ice and in photographing sand, snow and ice.

Bowing in 1780.

If you bow to anyone passing by,
do it in this manner: Raise the right
hand to your hat gracefully.

Put your forefinger as far as the crown, and your thumb under the crim, and then raise it from your head gracefully and easily.

Look at the person you bow to,
and hold your body gently forward.

Hold your left arm straight down
at your side, neither drawing it forward nor backward.

Move the right leg, if the person
goes by on the right side, and keep the other firm.

If the person goes by on the left side, move the left leg, and keep the right firm.

Let your body be bowed moderately, not too much.—November Atlantic.

Nature's Washrooms.

On a tiny, rocky isle in Clear Lake,
California, there is a perpetual soda
fountain, from which gushes better
soda water than the chemists can produce. Furthermore, here are natural wash tubs and washing machines and,
in some places, even ready-made soap.
In the Yellowstone National Park the family wash may be put into a stout bag that may be hung in one of the boiling springs and left there while
the owner goes about his business.
When taken out the clothes are so clean and white that no rinsing is necessary.

town and country canines—becomes an
all around nuisance by being allowed to form the habit of rushing out and barking and biting at every animate object that passes the place. Naturally this habit enrages passersby, who,
to use a common phrase, "lay" for the brute. After he has been whipped and stoned about so much he naturally looks upon every traveler as his enemy
and a foe to the premises he has undertaken to protect. The time to take the kinks out of a dog of this kind is before they are formed, by administering a good whipping every time he tries it. It won't take him long to catch on, and he will stay near the house, where he belongs.

As the stormy and cold winter
weather comes on those farmers living in the higher latitudes may perform a real service for themselves by taking some pains to provide food and shelter for the quail and pheasants
that during the summer and fall may have been frequenting the brush lots
and roadsides near their premises.
Especially is this true of the Hungarian and one or two other types of imported game birds which have been recently introduced and have not as yet adjusted themselves to the severe weather conditions. Simply from the standpoint of what these birds will do next season in the way of bug and insect destruction will more than pay for the time and expense of protecting them.

In the New Home

You want the best when starting in the new home. Above all, you want that home to be snug and warm and comfortable. You are sure of warmth and comfort with a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater.

The Perfection is the best and most reliable heater made. It is a sort of portable fireplace.

It is ready night and day. Just strike a match and light the wick. The Perfection is all aglow in a minute.

The Perfection Oil Heater does not smell nor smoke—a patent automatic device prevents that. It can be carried easily from room to room and is equally suitable for any room in the house. Handsomely finished, with nickel trimmings; drums of either turquoise-blue enamel or plain steel.

Seymour's Turkey

By
McMaster

Seymour glowered at the great basket on the dining table in his sister's apartment.

"Of course—I am the goat," he read the address printed in his sister's dainty hand on the basket—"and of course I have to carry this load up to Goatville!" He sighed as he thought of the subway and the long trip on this glorious Thanksgiving day. "Hang it all! I wish Jean would forget her philanthropies when she is out of town and not leave turkeys, pumpkin pines and a million other things for me to tote around the country."

John Seymour had run to town unexpectedly. Upon Thanksgiving morning, his sister had been as hurriedly called out.

"Talk about being 'alone in London,'" Seymour smiled grimly; "it isn't a marker on being alone in New York on Thanksgiving day."

With as good grace as he could muster Seymour swung the heavy basket over an arm to which it seemed light and went out to the nearest subway station.

He waited for a train and amused himself by watching a pretty but rather wistful girl. As she stepped into the train Seymour caught a more decided wistfulness—it was in the eyes and lurking in the curl of the lips.

He sat in the same cross seat with the girl and put his great basket on the floor. In doing so he touched her foot.

"I'm sorry!" he apologized and raised his hat.

For a fleeting second the wistfulness vanished from the girl's eyes; then she turned and gazed out of the window.

The train moved on and Seymour watched the crowds on the platforms.

He Stood Still in Dismay.

As they swarmed laughingly into the trains. A light snow had begun to fall—he could see traces of it on the coats of the men.

Seymour's spirits rose. After all, he might just happen to see a friend or even an acquaintance in that vast lot of people. He scanned the faces eagerly.

When the train drew in to Seventy-ninth street Seymour jumped up hurriedly and in his haste collided with many of the incoming passengers.

The girl in the seat watched him in amazement. Then she saw him shake hands with some one on the platform. After that, he made a frantic but useless effort to catch the train. The door slammed and the girl watched his lips as they formed short but vehement words.

With quick instinct she slipped the big basket he had carried under her own feet. A moment later she looked down and read the address.

"Why not?" she questioned herself a moment later. A hint of color had touched her cheeks and the wistfulness had in a measure been swept from her eyes.

After the short invectives had left Seymour's lips he turned to the friend whom he had met.

"My sister sends a turkey up to a little old woman every Thanksgiving morning. The one she sent this year is in that train!"

"Then it's a gone bird!" cheered the other.

"I will have to get another!" Seymour declared.

"Shops are all shut," commented the other. "It's not a very Thanksgiving suggestion—but couldn't you let the old lady go—for once?"

"She would never get over it. Besides—I have a feeling that—well—I just feel that I must get together another Thanksgiving basket and take it out to the Bronx."

Some hour and a half later Seymour again entered the subway train. When he got out a heavy basket was clasped tightly over one arm.

"If the name of the street and the old lady's name hadn't stuck in this worthless head of mine there would have been the deuce to pay."

Seymour, after much inquiry, found himself in an obscure street of the Bronx. He stood still in dismay. Which of that row of tiny but well kept cottages was the one in which Mrs. Brown lived? He walked the length of the street hoping that his memory would echo back the number of the house.

As he came back once more, feeling very much like a peddler and disliking more each moment to make inquiry, a girl stepped quickly from the smallest of the houses.

Seymour watched her as he approached. She seemed to hesitate about something and as she hesitated Seymour recognized her. She was the girl who had looked so very wistfully at him in the subway train. She was more attractive than before in a big gingham apron and with cheeks flushed and hair hopelessly tossed about.

With a tardy remembrance of his manners Seymour turned his eyes away from the alluring picture and would have walked on.

"Are you—looking for—Mrs. Blake?"

Seymour turned back. Surely she had addressed her words to him—there was not another soul in sight.

"Yes, I am," he said, and raised his hat.

The girl opened the gate and Seymour followed her. He felt strangely happy and he knew not why. She spoke again as they went into a tiny dining room.

"Mrs. Blake is not able to get down stairs today and I am cooking dinner for her."

Seymour only looked at her—his eyes alone questioned.

"I am all alone in New York," the girl went on, "and when you left your basket in the train—I decided to deliver it—rather than have it lost. Something told me it was a charity basket!"

Seymour wanted to say, "You are an angel." Instead, he said, "I was so overjoyed to catch sight of a familiar face—that I forgot everything—I, too, am alone in New York—and it's mighty tough."

Celia Mead repressed her smile. This big man was so forlorn and appealing. She thought a moment and Seymour watched a delicate flush appear.

"I have only met Mrs. Blake—but she is so sweet—I feel sure that she would invite you to dinner—if you care to risk my cooking."

So swift was the light in Seymour's eyes that the color rushed into Celia's cheeks.

"Do you suppose—could I carry her down—or something like that?" he asked quickly.

A sweet glad smile rewarded Seymour.

"If only you would!" she exclaimed. "She is little and frail, but I hardly dared risk carrying her myself. I bought a few flowers to add to your generous basket and do so want her to see how Thanksgiving everything looks on the table. If you will excuse me for a moment I will run up and tell her all about you—"

"What are you going to tell her?" Seymour could not help questioning her. "—that my name is John Seymour—"

"Yes—John Seymour," laughed Celia in a way that made the man feel that he had known her always. "—and I believe that I can guess the rest—as I go up the stairs."

"I have already guessed the rest," John Seymour said to himself. Celia had taken the light from the room and he sank into a chair and waited for that great light to return.

Her voice summoned him from the head of the stairs. "Mrs. Blake says it will be the greatest of all Thanksgivings—if we both spend it with her. You may come up—Mr. John Seymour."

Rootless Trees.

"Swindles of various kinds are perpetrated," said the Rev. Charles A. Ashmead, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Tarrytown. "But one of which I learned when on a vacation in Massachusetts may be new."

"Among the Berkshire Hills I met a man who had been victimized. He had purchased a piece of land largely because he noted the young and beautiful shade trees with which it was adorned. There were 30, most of them maples, with a sprinkling of elms. Five weeks after he had acquired the property he paid another visit to it with the intention of choosing a site for a home he purposed to erect."

"Imagine his amazement when he discovered that all the thrifty saplings were dying. Investigation revealed the fact that none of them had roots. The young trees had been cut in a forest, their trunks pointed with an ax, and merely stuck upright in the ground then for sale. Of course they died, and, also of course, the confiding buyer was swindled. The swindlers, too, were safely out of reach."

Diagnosing the Mummy.

In the crowd that moved through the rooms where Egyptian antiquities are on exhibition at the Metropolitan museum in New York was a middle-aged woman of rural appearance who seemed fascinated by the unwrapped mummy of a priest who died on the banks of the Nile some thousands of years ago. She studied the shriveled body from every angle. It was evident the thing had captured her imagination.

"She is reconstructing that strange life of 3,000 years ago," whispered a lady who noticed her. "How it appeals to the imagination of every one!"

Just then the woman from the country spoke. Turning to her companion, she remarked: "My, ain't he thin? He surely must have died of consumption."

A Matter of Accent.

A Chicago millionaire made a visit to England recently, where he enjoyed himself famously. The only fly in the ointment being his inability to successfully grapple with the English accent. At a fashionable dance in Cadogan square during the height of the London season he smilingly said to an elderly duchess:

"Duchess, may I have this dance?"

"I'm sorry," the duchess answered, "but I'm so tired I must rest. I am, in fact, drenched out."

"Oh, not darned stout," said the breezy Chicagoan politely—"only pleasantly so."

"MAY I HAVE THIS DANCE?"

An Unfortunate Ablution.

It is an authentic anecdote of Hogarth that he was wont to make certain miniature sketches on his thumbnail to be elaborated at an after time. A certain dramatist followed the practice. He would write a plot in the same limited space in shorthand. He was once consulted on a new drama by a manager.

"I have it," the writer exclaimed. And he immediately marked the plot upon his thumbnail. Weeks passed, but no play was presented. The manager consulted the author.

"Now, about the piece! It's done, of course. You took it on your thumbnail!"

"To be sure," replied the author, "and there it was for some time, but, as ill luck would have it, I one morning unfortunately washed my hands!"

Proof Positive.

Arthur Lefevre, the author, told this story of a happening at the University of Virginia during his student days in 1884:

There was a Baltimore freshman at the university whose father got several letters about his boy's wild ways—about his fondness for peach and honey and such-like heavy drinks. These letters grieved the old man to the heart. He wrote to the freshman and in reply got a general denial of all the charges.

Evidence, however, continued to pour in, and finally the father decided on a secret journey to Charlottesville. He timed himself to arrive late at night. It was, in fact, 2 o'clock in the morning when he rang the bell of his son's boarding house.

In response to his ring a woman in a yellow bath robe appeared, lamp in hand.

"What do you want?" she demanded, peering suspiciously forth into the darkness.

"Madam," said the amateur detective, "is this the residence of —?" And he mentioned his son's name.

The woman's grim look relaxed, and she answered indifferently:

"Yes, he lives here. You can carry him right in."

Typewriters, Blackboards and Office Furniture for Sale

As about all of my time is taken up with my duties at the bank, I have decided to close my school. I have a number of Smith Premier, Remington and Underwood Typewriters for sale at my school room in Gettysburg. These will go at about half price. Two of them are practically new machines. Also, two fine blackboards, two oak highly polished library or office tables, 3 ft. x 6 ft., 12 oak plank bottom chairs suitable for office or dining room. 3 typewriter desks, 3 revolving chairs, lamps, typewriter ribbons, etc.

This is a chance to get some good office furniture, typewriters, etc., at a very small cost, or for someone to open a shorthand school, at very little expense. Have had forty nine students during the past three years which goes to show that the location is good. SCHOOL BOARDS in need of BLACKBOARDS should see these. Call to see me or 'phone to me at the First National Bank.

CALLS FOR WILD ANIMALS

Indians Are Very Skillful in Attracting Game by Imitating Their Calls.

The Indians have a call or tole for nearly every animal, writes Mr. John G. Millais in "Newfoundland and its Untrodden Ways." They can bring a fox right up to within twenty yards by making a sibilant noise produced by sucking the back of the hand. Reynard takes it to be the cry of a mouse in difficulties, and seldom fails to advance close to the sound.

Stag caribou are toled by grunting loudly in two different ways, a vocal effort which requires little skill or practice on the imitator's part. The "herd" stag will quickly answer the caller, and advance for a short distance, but the "traveling" stag will come very close if the calls are properly made at suitable intervals.

Wild geese can be called when they first arrive in the spring, by waving a white rag and imitating their "honking" call, but after the first fortnight they take little notice of the lure. A small white dog is also attractive to geese in the spring, and one Indian I know of has killed numbers of these birds by using one for a decoy.

Beavers, when they have been undisturbed for long, are very curious in relation to strange sounds. They will come swimming out of their house even at the firing of a gun. The Indians usually call them with a hissing noise, or one produced by munching the lips. Another favorite tole is a sound made by tapping the trousers with the hand. The most successful beaver-caller in Newfoundland killed great numbers of beavers, in the open season, by making a sound that resembled the cutting of chips off a tree. It is said that the unfortunate beavers never fail to respond to this noise.

The Indian has no call for the lynx, but one or two of them can attract the otter by imitating its shrill whistle.—Youth's Companion.

HE HAD TO STRIKE OR BUST

Colored Man Was Afraid White Folks Would Think He Was Just Common Trash.

"I keep a colored man around the house who waits on the table and does various things," said the lawyer. "Up to a year ago he was getting $25 a month. Then he came to me one day and said he must have more money or he would strike. We talked it over, and settled on $28 a month. He has got along at that figure ever since until the other day, when he walked in on me and said:

"Mistah Blank, I'se sure got to go on strike dis time."

"But I thought you were satisfied, Robert," I replied.

"No, sah—no, sah. I hain't dun satisfied."

"Well, how much do you want?"

"I don't want any mo', sah."

"Then what's the trouble?"

"De trouble am, sah, dat de strike business am in de air all 'round me, an' I'se got to strike or bust."

"Are you going to leave?"

"No, sah."

"But you want more money?"

"No, sah."

"Well, what then?"

"A year ago, sah, I struck ford's fur $28. Now I'se gwine to strike backward fur de same $25. Sorry, sah, but I must dun strike or dese white folks 'round yere will think I'm jes common trash and hev no respect fur me!"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Canine Negotiator.

An amusing story concerning the Morocco negotiations is going the rounds of the French press. Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter possesses a beautiful dog of the boarhound type. The dog and his master are inseparable. One lives for the other; in fact, they remind one of Wordsworth's "Two Thieves" for their attachment. The dog takes part in the negotiations lying at the feet of his master and for the most part motionless. But in the course of the conversation sometimes the French diplomatist unconsciously raises his voice. Then a low growl from the dog leads M. Cambon to modulate his voice. When von Kiderlen-Waechter had to visit the kaiser on board his yacht at Kiel some time ago the dog, more suo, accompanied him. The two friends at the port seemed likely to suffer a short separation, but the kaiser saw what was going on between the statesman and harbor officials, and solved the difficulty, observing: "When two brothers come to see me I cannot do otherwise than receive them together."

Beyond Understanding.

A young man just returned from college was out cycling one day when suddenly he came to a steep gradient. While he was descending he lost control of his machine and was thrown. Two men came and found him lying on the ground. When asked how it happened he replied:

"Well, I came down that decline with the greatest velocity and lost my central gravity and was precipitated on the hard macadamized road."

"Away, lad; let him alone," replied one of the men. "He's a foreigner."

Vigorous Performer.

"Does your boy Josh play on the football team?"

"No," replied Farmer Cornkessel. "Josh wouldn't stand fur no mollycoddle job like that. He's the feller that leads the mob and wrecks opry houses after the game is over."
